

- Q. Do utilities generally construct their distribution systems to meet system peak? On what basis does Newfoundland Power construct its distribution system?
- A. It has been Mr. Brockman's experience that utilities usually construct their distribution systems to meet non-coincident peaks at the distribution substations and distribution feeders. Newfoundland Power follows the same practice.